KUMARAN ASAN

Mahakavi Kumaran Asan, the great poet laureate of Kerala was born in 1873 at Kayikkara, a coastal village near Trivandrum. He had his early education in Sanskrit under reputed scholars in his village. He continued his study of Sanskrit, Tamil and Vedic Philosophy and mastered Yoga and Advaita at Aruvippuram in the hermitage of Sree Narayan Guru. He studied English at the Sanskrit College at Bangalore (1895) and acquired a degree in Tharkasastra from Central Hindu College, Calcutta (1897).

The year 1900 marks the beginning of Asan's brilliant literary career. His earliest poems were purely devotional. Veena Poovu (1908), Nalini (1911), Leela (1914) and Chinthavishtayaya Sita (1919) are the outstanding examples of his introspective, self-oriented studies. His famed later works "Duravastha" and "Chandalabhiksuki" and "Karuna" showed the poet more as a rebel and fighter against injustice and exploitation.

Kumaran Asan served as the General Secretary of S.N.D.P.(Sree Narayana Dharma Paripalana Yogam) for 15 years since its inception and later as the president. He received the title 'Mahakavi' from the Prince of Wales. The Poet, like Shelley, was destined for a watery grave. In his fifty first year, when he was at the height of his poetic genius, he was drowned in a boating accident at Pallana, 24 kms south of Allepey, Kerala. The river side grave where his mortal remains lie, is a place of pilgrimage, celebrated as "Kumara Kodi".
